

How to Put on A Parachute

Before you get into the glider you are required to put on a parachute. The key things are to ensure that you don't pull the rip-cord by mistake and that you are as comfortable as possible.

The rip-cord is the thing that opens the parachute. It is circled in red on the picture below. DO NOT touch it.

When you arrive at your glider the parachute will be placed on a wing as shown above.

To put it on, first cleanse your hands. Then pass your left hand through the shoulder strap with the rip cord on it, as shown:

Then swing the chute onto your back and put your right arm through:

Undo the leg straps, pass them round your leg and refasten

Pull the leg straps as tight as comfortable

Then do up the chest strap.
DO NOT touch the Rip Cord

And that's it. All you need do now is cleanse your hands and get into the glider.
